Learning Japanese.

The Japanese language is not difficult to learn, but for a foreigner it needs immense application before he can read a single sentence in the Chinese-Japanese hieroglyphics. It is a curious fact, however, that the complexity of the system makes no difference in education, for it seems proved that, though the apparatus required for reading Japanese is two syllabaries and more than 2,000 characters, many of which have more than one sound, yet a Japanese child learns to read as quickly as a European child does.—London Standard.

A Narrow Escape.

C. W. Cloyd, a merchant, of Plunk, Mo., had a narrow escape four years ago, when he ran a Jimson bar into his thumb. He says: "The doctor wanted to amputate it but I would not consent. I bought a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and that cured the dangerous wound." 25c at Socorro Drug and Supply Co.

HON. CARL A. DALIES DEAD

Heart Failure Brings Sudden End Prominent Political and Business Career.

Hon. Carl A. Dalies died suddenly of heart failure Monday morning at his home in Willard. Since coming to New Mexico in 1893 Mr. Dalies had had a brilliant career in business and in politics. He was associated with his uncle, John Becker, in several large business enterprises. He was elected a member of the territorial legislature for four terms and was speaker of the house during the session of the thirty-sixth legislative assembly. Mr. Dalies possessed a charm of manner and a loyalty that endeared him to a large circle of friends. He leaves a young widow to mourn his untimely death.

GOATS CLEAR BRUSH LAND.

Flock Quickly Makes Away with Tangle of Briars.

A flock of Angora goats was put on a rocky hillside that it was desired to have cleared and put into grass. It was such a tangle of brush and briars that it was with difficulty one could make a way through it. The goats actually ate their way in until it was penetrated with paths in all directions. After the leaves within reach were eaten they would stand on their hind feet with their forefeet in the branches and so eat the leaves higher up, or, if the brush was not too large, would throw their weight against and bend it to the ground, where others of the flock would help strip it of its foliage. The leaves would come out again only to be eaten off, then sprouts would come from the roots to share the same fate, until at the end of the second summer everything in the shape of a brush not over six feet tall, except the pines and laurel, were completely killed and white clover was beginning to appear. These goats, with their long, curly white fleeces, attracted more attention than anything else on the place, but, as can be imagined, they had to be well fenced in for they would run over a stone wall like dogs.

The Toad and Its Skin.

The toad sheds its skin at certain periods, the old one coming off and leaving a new one, which has been formed underneath, in its stead. It does not give its cast off coat away to any poorer toad, and there are no toads dealing in second hand raiment. Neither does it leave its cast off jacket on the ground after the fashion of the shiftless snake. It swallows its overcoat at one mouthful, converting its stomach into a portmanteau.

Essential to Biography.

Some years ago Norman Hapgood was arranging the data for his "Life of Lincoln." When he sat down to write the opening chapter, he was confronted with a puzzle. Hurrying to an adjoining room of the paper, on the staff of which he was a shining light, he asked the editor, "By the way, what was Lincoln's first name, Abram or Abraham?"

KEEP YOUR BLOOD CLEAN

A Swedish girl just arrived from the old country attended evening service at a Duluth church. The minister, seeing she was a stranger, shook hands with her at the close of the meeting and said he would find pleasure in calling upon her soon, whereupon the girl, blushing, hung her head and bashfully murmured, "Thank you, but Ay have a fella."

The Cat-Meat Man.

There is a man in New York city whom every cat on the street runs to meet. Each day he calls to leave meat for the cats that are kept in warehouses on the water front as a protection against river rats. On Saturday mornings this cat caterer is always later, and the cats will not stir from home until he comes. The man thinks that the cats must read the calendars in the offices to find out when Saturday comes: if not, how do they know?
